The IO4: BRAVE MOOC for Social Innovation in Education

BRAVE MOOC for Social Innovation in Education is available, tested and validated!

The Brave MOOC offers to unemployed people wishing to change their career path or to establish their business, but also to all interested persons, an opportunity to reflect on and to expand their learning approaches to a virtual training program.

The aim of the Brave MOOC is to help the participants, trainers and all the interested parts to develop a set of skills and apply them in various actions, activities and fields. In addition, participants will have the chance to document their effective training.

The Brave MOOC has selected five modules with 12 exercises developed and implemented by the project participants, including as references 55 resources most of them created during the project life.

BRAVE MOOC for Social Innovation in Education for increasing unemployed adult's skills and competences

Brave MOOC is challenging traditional education and enable participants to be part of a global community of peers. It offers the potential for opening up educational and facilitating social inclusion.

The main objectives of the BRAVE MOOC are:

- develop intercultural competences: enhancing cultural understanding, experiencing different cultural settings, through Brave MOOC courses, being able to deal with intercultural issues, feeling confident in interacting with people from other countries
- experiencing different learning methodologies
- increase/ improve digital skills: working in digital contexts, interacting with libraries in a foreign language
- self regulated learning: being able to “study” in a flexible way, independent of time and place, enhancing lifelong learning skills, developing learning self-regulation strategies.
